A good many wives are unhappy because their husbands are not as devoted to them as they used to be. Husbands often wonder why their wives are not as attractive as they once were. There is one class of diseases that makes more trouble between husbands and wives—that turns more happy, light-hearted, young brides into sour, disagreeable women than all else put together. Nearly always when a happy young wite begins to be fretfoil and fault-finding, when she commences to go down hill in health and appearance she has some of the complaints fa-down hill in health and appearance she has some of the complaints familiarly called "female diseases". There is something wrong in the delicate organs that make her a woman. McElree's Wine of Cardui is made to keep those organs in smature intended she should. If husbands would keep their wives supplied with this wonderful medicine it would often make a great difference withstheir homes. It will keep their wives happy, contented, affectionate, attractive. Wine of Cardui can be bought at any drug store, and women can take it in the privacy of their own homes.

Wine of Cardui

BROOKSHIRE, Texas, Nov. 18th, 1997.

I have bought two bottles of McElree's Wine of Cardul for my wife and daughter. After taking them, they are both in better health than for two years. We know this medicine is of the greatest benefit to women.

HIS ARREST.

THE MAN'S HISTORY

CHANGED HIS NAME. 'Middleton's sentence at Auburn was dence from Canada, but Middleton fied as soon as suspicion was aroused, and he was once more lost to view. New he turns up in Woodstock, the identification being complete, and the indications are that he has gone through the sham of marrying two other unfortunate young women. The indications are that Middleton is levolved in a large number of other questionable transactions. Mr. Monroe's acquaintance with him establishes the fact of his Terento cureer and of his identity with the man who made the attempt to use the Department of the Interior to further a Klondike scheme, while it also shows that he has been convicted and imprisoned."

A dispatch from Woodstock to the Graphic says:

"Four wives are now charged up to R. L. Middleton, chief engineer of the B. & W. railroad. One is a Toronto lady, but what her name is the police refuse to state. Middleton told Mr. Mack, his private secretary, that he had married a Miss Langmuir of Toronto. Magare Thomas of Woodsteck, is another, while the other one is said to be a Clinton young lady, whose name is for the present kept secret. Middleton will be charged with bigumy before the case of obtaining goods under false pratences is disposed of."

When in Richmond Middleton had a wife with him. She was the Miss Thomas referred to above. They were married in Chicago. The man did not take the woman away with him. She left here a day or two after his departure and returned to her parents in Canada.

The young man conformed that his memory was at fault, but said that he was giad to meet a son of such a highly-esteemed citizen of Manchester. Dim suspicions began to assail him, however, for he was under the impression that Mr. Adamson had no grown children.

The young men chatted together pleasantly for awhile, and then the so-called Mr. Adamson proposed that they should go out and see the city by gaslight, promising to show his campanion some literesting things.
